Maple syrup has become a fundamental, all-natural sweetener known for its distinct flavor and beneficial minerals and antioxidants. Our maple syrup goes on a tree to table journey starting in our northern forests, where the world's finest syrup is born. Vermont generates over 50 percent of the country's maple syrup, more than all other states combined. Maple sap is taken straight from the trees as they wake up for spring. It takes about 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of maple syrup. The finest maple syrup products are delicious, nutritious, and are a must-have for any dining experience.
